Strategic Plan
Executive Summary
Executive Summary: An Introduction

The Albright-Knox Art Gallery has a rich and impressive history as one of the world’s major venues for modern and contemporary art.

To build upon this tradition, and to forge an even stronger institution in the years ahead, the Board of Directors of The Buffalo Fine Arts Academy and the Gallery staff took the extraordinary step of engaging in a comprehensive strategic planning process. Their purpose was to establish a vision that would set the Gallery’s trajectory for the 21st century, including the 150th anniversary celebration of the Academy’s founding in 2012.

To accomplish this, the Gallery interviewed twelve national museum directors and curators and more than sixty members of the community and Gallery supporters, and engaged the Board of Directors, staff, and volunteers in the arduous work of numerous task forces, committees, and subcommittees to evaluate, question, and propose recommendations on every aspect of the Gallery’s existence.

In the spirit of open and honest discussion, special consideration was given to future directions for our artistic focus, public and educational programs, community involvement, marketing, outreach to new and more diverse audiences, visitor experience, governance and administration, fund development and volunteer support, technology, and facilities.

The result is a Strategic Plan for the Gallery that clearly states our mission, our vision, and the strategic priorities required to fulfill them. It is a guide for our future, one that clearly reflects the vitality of the Gallery and the considerable commitment of our board and staff.

We will be implementing the plan through several phases over the coming years as we position the Albright-Knox Art Gallery to be:

- One of the world’s most dynamic modern and contemporary art institutions because of our outstanding collections, programs, creative collaborations, and unique facilities;
- A vital cultural gathering place for Western New Yorkers and an indispensable community educational resource;
- A major contributor to the Buffalo/Niagara economy by serving as a magnet attraction for a growing regional, national, and international audience.

We look forward to the exciting opportunities presented by this Strategic Plan and to its promise of an even greater Albright-Knox Art Gallery as the new century unfolds.

THE BUFFALO FINE ARTS ACADEMY

An Esteemed History

Founded officially in December 1862, The Buffalo Fine Arts Academy is among the country’s oldest public arts institutions, sharing that distinction with the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia, the Wadsworth Atheneum Museum of Art in Hartford, and the Yale University Art Gallery in New Haven, among others. At the turn of that century, John J. Albright set this institution on its course by donating funds for a new building. With Edward B. Green as its architect, the Greek revival structure that became the permanent home for the Albright Art Gallery was dedicated on May 31, 1905. During the middle years of the century, Seymour H. Knox, Jr. became the Gallery’s most influential supporter, not only making possible the building of a new addition designed by Gordon Bunshaft, but also amassing a brilliant collection of artworks. The group of nearly 700 works collected during this time represent still the most intense period of growth for the Gallery’s collection, a result of Mr. Knox’s daring spirit, discerning judgment, and the unique partnership and vision he shared with Director Gordon M. Smith. The new wing that was dedicated in 1962, one hundred years after the founding of the Academy, stands as a testament to Mr. Knox and his vision; his generosity was reflected in the institution’s adoption of a new name, the Albright-Knox Art Gallery.
Foreword

Today, we stand at the cusp of yet another century’s turn. Indeed, we have even moved into a new millennium. Strategic planning, so much a process of our times, has proven to be an invaluable way for institutions to vision, to plan, to strategize. It also gives us the opportunity to review the work we have done, affirm our successes, look with a critical eye on what we could have done better, and chart our course for the future. By its very nature, strategic planning involves an enormous amount of risk-taking, requiring honesty, courage, energy, and vision.

The process that the Gallery embarked upon over a year ago reflects a monumental amount of work. There have been many rigorous and spirited discussions around such topics as the Gallery’s true mission, its role in the community, and its service to its audience. Everyone around the table – from Board members and staff to our friends in the community and our colleagues in the national art arena – have brought their best efforts to bear upon these issues. Through this series of candid conversations, we have clarified our mission, recasting it in language that more distinctly reflects our position in the 21st century. We have put forth a vision, setting us on a trajectory that will assure our prominence in the national and international art arenas. And, through thoughtful visioning, we have formulated a comprehensive strategic plan – with numerous bold initiatives – which will serve as a compass to set our path, with the understanding that any such process will take us down many roads.

The recent past has presented a number of challenges. Today, the Gallery has sharpened its focus and set its sights high and wide. We have been unrestrained and enthusiastic in our creative brainstorming. We look with anticipation at the exciting opportunity to embark on a new and significant building project that will address pressing space issues and support ambitious programming initiatives. In an environment that welcomes innovation and nurtures creativity, we renew our commitment to abiding by the highest standards as we do our work to advance this fine institution.

A Dynamic Future

Since its inception 138 years ago, The Buffalo Fine Arts Academy has had the foresight to build a world-renowned collection of art. From the very beginning, the Academy, and then the Gallery, exhibited and acquired works of contemporary artists with the hope that many would become the old masters of tomorrow. The result of this practice, through the sheer passage of time, has placed the Gallery in the enviable position of housing one of the world’s most extraordinary collections of modern art. Today, the Gallery also possesses a collection of significant contemporary art, which is the result of more recent acquisition decisions. It continues as well its notable history of mounting important exhibitions of contemporary artists. This process of successive generations of directors, curators, and Board members taking risks to acquire and exhibit the contemporary art of their era has been fundamental, indeed critical, to the Gallery’s success.

For many decades, the Gallery was one of only a handful of institutions committed to a strategy of taking bold risks to acquire and exhibit contemporary art, continually and successfully staking its reputation on works and trends that had yet to receive the final imprimatur from art historians. Currently, there are many more institutions and voices in the contemporary art world commanding attention and respect. Today, in this ever-widening field, the Gallery recognizes and welcomes the opportunity to promote its distinguished history and its superb collections, exhibitions, and programs in an ambitious way. By expanding its efforts strategically to enrich its holdings and offerings, the Gallery will affirm its position within the national and international art arenas.

All of the goals set forth in this Plan are carefully crafted and high-reaching. Some call upon new attitudes and visions and can be realized within a short amount of time. Others will require a significant infusion of funds and are large in scope. Of the latter, the most challenging but also the most exciting is the creation of a new, exceptional building to meet the programmatic needs of this Plan. Designed by a world-class architect, it will also be an attraction in and of itself, will signal bold change, and will be a key factor in the Gallery’s future success. By attracting visitors from all over the world by sheer virtue of its architectural presence, it will serve as a cornerstone in the cultural life of the Buffalo/Niagara Region.

The Board of Directors of The Buffalo Fine Arts Academy and staff of the Albright-Knox Art Gallery are committed to the vision and goals outlined in this Strategic Plan.
Mission

The Albright-Knox Art Gallery, one of the nation’s oldest public arts organizations, has a clear and compelling mission to acquire, exhibit, and preserve both modern and contemporary art. It focuses especially on contemporary art, with an active commitment to taking a global and multidisciplinary approach to the presentation, interpretation, and collection of the artistic expressions of our times. In an enriching, dynamic, and vibrant environment that embraces diverse cultures and traditions, the Gallery seeks to serve a broad and far-reaching audience.

Civic and cultural leaders, public officials, African-American special interest groups, executives in industry and banking, academicians and scholars, artists, and parents of ART ATTACK! students all participated in valuable dialogue about the Gallery and its role in the community.

As well, twelve national museum directors and curators spoke at length with Ms. Pressly about the Gallery, its collection, its work, and its place within the national arena.

The Albright-Knox Art Gallery is exceedingly grateful to all those who contributed to this Plan by giving us so much of their time and by speaking so candidly and thoughtfully about the Gallery.
